PRESS RELEASE

Contact: Monica Jungster, Montana House (406) 888-5393 or 1960mthouse@qwestoffice.net www.montanahouse.info

For release the week of September 29, 2014

"Saving All the Pieces: Large Carnivores in the Crown of the Continent and Beyond" at the Montana House October 11, 2014

The Montana House is pleased to present another in its 8 years history of Look Listen and Learn events — this time with science writer and wildlife ecologist Dr. Cristina Eisenberg. Her presentation will be based on her just released book The Carnivore Way: Conserving and Coexisting with America's Carnivores, and on her scientific research. The event will be at 4 pm Saturday afternoon, October 11th at the Montana House in Apgar Village, inside Glacier National Park.

"What would it be like to live in a world with no predators roaming our landscapes? Would their elimination...bring about a pastoral, peaceful human civilization? Eisenberg argues compellingly for the necessity of top predators in large, undisturbed landscapes, and how a continent-long corridor — a "carnivore way" — provides the room they need to roam and the connected landscapes that allow them to disperse.

Dr. Eisenberg follows the footsteps of six large carnivores —wolves, grizzly bears, lynx, jaguars, wolverines, and cougars — on a 7,500-mile wildlife corridor from Alaska to Mexico, along the Rocky Mountains. Backed by robust science, she shows how their well-being is a critical factor in sustaining healthy landscapes and how it is possible for humans and large carnivores to coexist peacefully and even to thrive."

Eisenberg holds a doctorate in Forestry and Wildlife from Oregon State University and studied the ecological effects of wolves in the Crown of the Continent since 2006. She is a Smithsonian Research Associate, an Earthwatch Institute scientist, a Boone and Crocket Club Professional Member, and an Aldo Leopold scholar. Her previous book, The Wolf's Tooth: Trophic Cascades and Biodiversity was published by Island Press in April 2010. She also serves as the nonfiction editor for Whitefish Review and is currently working on her third book, Taking the Heat: Wildlife, Food Webs, and Extinction in a Warming World

The presentation at the Montana House will be at 4 pm with time for questions, and a reception will follow. The event is open to the public without charge, but seating is limited, so reservations are needed. Please call 406-888-5393 for additional information and to reserve your seats.

Hans and Toni Jungster established the Montana House Regional Craft Shop in 1960 in Apgar Village, just inside Glacier National Park. Their daughter, Monica and staff continue to carry on their mission: to celebrate and promote the creativity of Montana and Native American artists and craftsmen for our mutual benefit. The Montana House has been a long time avid supporter of Glacier National Park and celebrated its own 50th anniversary on June 26, 2010.